

Session Three Discussion Question :

In the early 19th century, France still had the most influence in Europe. One of the most important developments there was the institution of a parliamentary system which, as we will see, served as a model in other countries. How do you assess the evolution of the parliamentary system during this period? What do you think were its most important problems? What do you think were its most important accomplishments?