

Assignment:

Lecture 9 looks at the difficulties which one of the poorest states in Eastern Europe -Romania- is experiencing in trying to attract investments and loans from the international financial community. Part of the problem lies in the difficult conditions which the IMF attaches to its stand-by loans and the political and domestic factors that prevent full-scale reform in Romania.